

ARTIST STATEMENT

Timothy Boggs is a Los Angeles based Artist who works in a variety of mediums including ceramic sculpture, acrylic painting, photography and the digital art on display.

Timothy explores the fluid forms that one finds in nature, particularly in rock formations, tree branches, cloud formations and the optical distortions one sees when looking through water. Each image begins as a still photograph or direct scan, then manipulated, sculpted and distorted, colors changed and enhanced to create provocative works of art.

ORGANIC ABSTRACTIONS

Fluid forms and color in motion; that is how I like to describe my creations. Each image is intended to take the viewer on a journey – an exploration into not only what one sees, but what one feels deep inside. Much like the Rorschach inkblot test images used in psychology, each viewer may experience something different based on their own feelings and personal history. Some images are more apparent than others, but the meaning of each piece is as fluid as the work itself.

So go ahead and stare deeply. Set your imagination free. Explore and discover the images within each image. Like watching a cloud or rock formations, just relax, let go and have fun. Let the colors wash over you. Don't just see, FEEL. And most of all ENJOY.
